GOVERNMENT TAKES HAND IN JERSEY COAST RUM FLEET

All Available Guard Boats in North Atlantic Concentrated, to Watch Runners Day and Night, Prevent Liquor Smuggling

ALL SUSPECTED AUTOES ON LAND TO BE SEARCHED

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 2.—The Government, centering a triangular attack on a rum fleet off Jersey coast, today seized a tug and motor launch carrying provision to an alien craft anchored off the three-mile limit. Other steps include an announcement from Washington that coast guard cutters would keep the fleet under constant watch to prevent customers putting out from shore, and a system on land of searching all automobiles suspected of carrying liquor landed by rum runners.

By Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Coast guard headquarters today issued an order concentrating all available coast guard boats in north Atlantic along the New Jersey coast. It was said that henceforth the rum fleet massed of the Atlantic highland would be under surveillance of two coast guard cutters, day and night

SHELBURNE BUILDING NOT TO BE USED FOR HEALTH EXHIBIT

The vacant Shelburne building will not be used for the health exhibit, according to the owners as it will not be refinished on the interior before the exhibit is held. The owners would be willing to lend it for the three days use if it were in a proper condition. No further remodeling of the building will be done until a tenant for it is found

GENERAL COAL CAR SHORTAGE

Mines in This Section Curtail Production Because of Insufficient Car Supply

A general coal car shortage has been noticeable in this section the past week or so, particularly on the Southern. As a result mines have been forced to curtail production and a general shut down for more than half of the time has resulted.

The Log Mountain coal company's mines, served by the Southern, have particularly felt this. Mingo, Yellow Creek, Benett's Fork and Hignite have only been running two or three days a week recently and the situation is still about the same.

The Climax mine has been running only two or three days per week for over a month but hope was expressed by officials today that the working days would be increased. Shortage of cars is said to have curtailed the production of the mines.

The Congress mine which has been shut down for about three weeks will also perhaps resume operation soon, according to reports received today.

REGISTRATIONS FOR EXHIBIT ARE SLOW

Children Must Be Registered This Week—Two and a Half to Six Years Eligible Ages

Registrations for the free examination of pre-school age children which will be conducted at the Health Exhibit here May 17-18-19 are coming in slowly, according to Miss Edith Hart. Only four children have been registered.

"It is important that the children be registered this week an dit is hoped that all the parents will take advantage of the opportunity before it is too late. Children from two and one-half years to six years of age may be registered. Registration is simple and may be done by telephone. Miss Hart who is employed in the office of Chas. G. Smyth, telephone number 81, is in charge of the registration.

The examination of children by competent physicians will be a feature of the Health Exhibit this year. Miss Wilhelmine Marx, general chairman of health exhibit who is in Louisville this week expressed the hope that every child within the age limits would be registered for the examination.

GET SUIT CASE OF BOTTLED IN BOND

Ten Local Men Disappointed When Prescription Whiskey Falls Into Hands of Police

Whiskey by prescription! This method of obtaining liquor was uncovered by the police when they arrested Lonnie Montgomery, L. and N. flagman, with a suit-case containing ten bottles of "bottled in bond" as he stepped off the train this morning. Montgomery was able to make bond in police court but Judge J. G. Rollins, federal commissioner, notified jail authorities here to keep the defendant in confinement until further notice.

The liquor was well packed in excelsior. Each bottle contained the prescription on which the liquor was issued The prescriptions all bore the name of the local physician who had issued them. The name of the Taylor-Isaacs Drug company, Louisville, was on each bottle. Names on the ten bottles of "Old Rose" and 'Old Prince were: Lonnie Redmond, John McHenry, Robert N. Neely, William Lynch, Ed Johns, J. W. Montgomery, John Alexander, W. G. Montgomery, Sam Johnson and Henry Jenkins.

The police have been working for some time on the clue that whiskey was being transported from Louisville in this manner. Chief H. E. Ball, A. D DeBusk, C. M. Yeary and Herbert Ball made the arrest. Montgomery's trial will take place here tomorrow morning.

DR. DOUGLAS TAKES UP NEW PASTORATE

Presbyterian Pastor Conducts First Regular Service Tonight—Macon Mourns His Leaving

The Rev. Dr. Rutherford E. Douglas arrived today from Macon, Ga., where he had been as pastor of the First Presbyterian church for twenty-one years, to take charge of the pastorate of the First Presbyterian church here. He will conduct prayer meeting services tonight. Mrs. Douglas will not come until later.

The new pastor will conduct his first service Sunday and will be here permanently now. The Presbyterian church has been without a pastor since the departure of Dr. J. A. Gray in February.

"When the time came for me to leave Macon," Dr. Douglas said today, "where I had been pastor for more than twenty-one years of a splendid and devoted people, and where I had learned to love the beautiful southern city, I found it increasingly hard to break the ties and I left with many misgivings.

"Now that I have come to this beautiful spot in the heart of the Cumberlands toward which my mind has been turning constantly for many weeks, and to which I have looked forward to as my home," he continued, "I am happy as I consider taking up my work in this church and among these people who have already done so much in so short a time. Then, too, I find myself happy in the thought of being again in the state with whose educational institutions, churches and political life my forebears have been intimately associated since Kentucky was part of Virginia.

"My great-grandfather," Dr. Douglas Cabell Breckinridge, one of the first lawyers in Lexington, Ky. My grandfather was John C Young, one of Centre College's first presidents. Dr. Robert J. Breckinridge, one of the early professors of the Theological Seminary at Danville, was my great-uncle My father was for thirty-three years pastor of the old Pisgah church in Woodford county, the only church he ever served.

"I was born in Woodford county," Dr. Douglas said, "and received my early education at the country church school. I entered Central University at Richmond in the sophomore year. When I was graduated from there I went directly to Hospital College at Louisville, and when I graduated from there I began the practice of medicine in Lexington. However, I soon determined to enter the ministry. I spent three years, then, studying theology, two years in Virginia and one in Kentucky, practicing medicine all of the time to defray my expenses.

"I was ordained in the West Lexington presbytery, and for a time, besides preaching in Breathitt and Lee counties, was supply pastor for Walnut Hill, Salem and Mount Tabor churches. In 1895 I was called to Nicholasville where I served six years, then I went to Macon where I had been ever since."

THOUSAND POUNDS SUGAR SELL IN FIVE MINUTES

One thousand pounds of sugar were sold in about five minutes at the Abe Effron store recently where a sale is being conducted. It was wrapped in five-pound packages and only one was sold to each customer. Two hundred cans of condensed milk were likewise disposed of in a short time. Prices on these commodities had been greatly reduced to attract the buyers. The store has been using a force of sixteen clerks many of them borrowed from other Effron stores, during the sale

KIWANIANS READY FOR CONVENTION

District Secretary Visits Atlanta to Make Final Arrangements, Gives Instructions

In a letter to the local Kiwanis Club, Boyd Ford, district secretary of Kiwanians, writes as follows:

"Your District Secretary spent a day last week in Atlanta and everything is in fine shape. The Convention Committee who are the Powers that Be have assigned us to the Kimball which was the only available hotel willing to assure the required number of rooms necessary for our District. We will therefore, be within two blocks of the City Auditorium and equally as close to Wesley Hall, where all sessions will be held.

"I am urging your support to the following:

"(A) Insist on your Club members who have not sent Hotel requests to do so at once. We still have some rooms at the hotel but it can't last long. Registration is 40 per cent heavier than last year.

"(B) Advise your President or Secretary NOW, if you will attend the dinner for all delegates and visitors of this District on Tuesday 6:30 P. M at our hotel. Price $1.50 per plate and you have to eat somewhere.

"(C) If you don't find everything in Atlanta to your liking Keep it to yourself. If the hotel isn't what you prefer, it is the fault of the Convention Committee. But don't add to their many troubles just blame the District Secretary.

"(D) Read and study the program just as soon as you get one. It is a wonder. You don't have to miss a single thing.

"(E) Don't hesitate to call on your Club Secretary or the Dist. Secy. for information or assistance."

Those from Middlesboro who have so far, definitely announced their intention of going to the Atlanta convention are: Mr. and Mrs. A. P Liebig, Mr. and Mrs T. R. Hill, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Smyth and Mr. and Mrs T. C Zimmerman.

NEGRO HERB DOCTOR SAYS HE HAS STONE MAN'S SHOE LAST

A stone-man's shoe last is the latest contribution to archaeological research in the mountains. The contribution is made by James G. Anderson, colored scientist, archaeologist, herb doctor, composer, poet and man of many talents. Mr. Anderson, whose home is at Ralston, Ky., is in town today displaying the large piece of rock which he classifies so naively.

Mr. Anderson makes the following statement in regard to his great discovery:

"Lately I picked up what I fancy to call a Stone-man's shoe last. It is a shoe-last shaped stone, weighing about 25 pounds, and resembles in every particular the shape and curves of the human foot. Its length being 20 inches, and the circumference of the ankle measuring 20 inches, it appears that men of full stature in this age must have been about 12 feet tall."

CANADIAN COUPLE GUILTY MURDER HANGED TODAY

Both Protest Innocence to Last—First Woman to Get Capital Punishment in 25 Years—Fifth in Country's History

TWO KILLED OFFICER IN RUM RUNNING PLOT

By Associated Press.

FORT. SASKATCHEWAN, Alberta, May 2.—Mrs. Florence Lassandra and Emilio Piccarrille were hanged today for the murder of Constable Lawson last September. She is the first woman to be hanged in Canada in twenty-five years and the fifth in Canadian history. Lawson was killed as the result of a rum running plot.

Piccarrillo was first to mount the scaffold He asserted they were hanging an innocent man but a moment later the trap was sprung. The woman followed him on the scaffold. "Why do you hang me, I did not do anything." She waited and added, "Is there anyone here who has any pity?" Guards prepared her for death and just before the trap was sprung she forgave every body. Lawson, their victim, had made a series of fruitless attempts to capture their rum running car just prior to the murder. On the last attempt he was shot to death, apparently by the woman. Piccarrillo known as the "bootleg king" and had grown wealthy at the trade and took the woman along with him on his trips, knowing that police would not shoot when she was in the car. The woman was dubbed, "bootleg queen."

MISTRIAL RESULTS IN LIQUOR CASE

Marcus Ginsburg Says Flem Campbell Gave Him $11 and Gallon and Half Whiskey For Suit

A mistrial resulted in the case of Flem Campbell, charged with selling liquor to Marcus Ginsburg, which was tried before a jury in police court this morning. The case will be tried again tomorrow morning.

Marcus Ginsburg testified that Flem Campbell gave him a gallon and half of whiskey and eleven dollars cash for a suit of clothes in January. The transaction is said to have taken place in Bill Baker's barber shop where Campbell was an employe. The defendant was wearing the clothes during the trial, according to the prosecuting witness.

Campbell denied having sold any liquor to the boy but testified that he had bought a suit of clothes from him paying thirteen dollars for it. W. P. Readus, presser at the barber shop, and George Fisher, proprietor of the Fad pool room were called as witnesses by the defendant. They testified that they did not know of any liquor transaction.

The jury, composed of H. C. Chappell L. H. Overton, C. F. Huff, W. P. Seavers, Hugh Allen and Jack Caldwell, was out about thirty minutes and was unable to agree upon a verdict.

DR. GRAY FORMALLY INSTALLED AS PASTOR LEXINGTON CHURCH

The following item from the Lexington Herald tells of Dr. Johnson Archer Gray's installation as minister of the Maxwell Presbyterian church:

Dr. J. Archer Gray, minister of Maxwell Presbyterian church, was installed at the evening service Sunday, before a crowd that filled every seat in the auditorium.

The Rev. S. M. Logan of Midway, minister of the Presbyterian church at that place, presided. The Rev. J. Clay Lilly, minister of the First Presbyterian church of Lexington, charged the pastor and the Rev. A. H. Doak, of the First Presbyterian church at Georgetown, preached the installation sermon.

After the service, the large congregation, made up of the members of the First Presbyterian church as well as the members of the Maxwell church crowded around the minister and expressed their loyalty and promised him their strongest support. There were several people from Middlesboro, members of Dr. Gray's former church present to do honor to Dr. Gray.

Announce Discovery of Cure For Pulmonary Tuberculosis

By Assosiated Press.

PITTSBURGH, May 2.—A cure for pumonary tuberculosis by the use of pure carbon and calcium was claimed by Dr William P. Nolan of Jeanette, Penn., in an address before the Westmoreland County Medical Society at Greensburg, Penn., last night. Discussing his statement over the telephone, from his home today, he said the cure was posible through "inhalation of practically pure carbon in amorphous form and calcium in the form of carbonate phosphate, chloride and lactate." he said seventy-two cases, mostly far advanced, had responded to treatment so well that they could be pronounced well and at present he was treating five patients in the same manner.

A THOUGHT

There is nothing better for a man, than that he should eat and drink, and that he should make his soul enjoy good in his labor.—Eccles. 2:24.

Man hath his daily work of body or mind appointed, which declares his dignity; while other animals unactive range, and of their doings God takes no account.—Milton.

SUCCESS AND RESPONSIBILITY

An insurance company recently carried out a survey to determine some of the factors that contribute to success, as well as to health and happiness. The policies on file were studied and investigation was made of hundreds of men without their knowledge.

The findings indicate that out of 100 men with no dependents upon them forty-nine are successful. Of 100 men having two or more dependents, sixty-three are successful. It was found out of 100 single men, fifty-one are failures and forty-nine are successful. Out of 100 married men, fifty-nine, on the average, succeed.

The result also indicates that men who succeed generally begin to show their mettle in the thirties. There are exceptions, of course, but the span between thirty and forty is the time when the average man finds himself and lays the foundation for his permanent work.

A man who marries gives a hostage to fortune and this responsibility anchors him much more strongly than does the lure of future gain. The acquisitive instinct is by no means the only factor that holds a man to his task. Habit, social imitation and social standing also do this. Responsibility plays a large part in success, because it generally means a firmer hold on a task, and this is the first step in the process of extracting ability, skill and fineness out of dull and stubborn drudgery. Whoever fills his niche and accomplishes his work, who gives the best of himself and draws out the best from others, succeeds whether or not he piles up a fortune. —Minneapolis Journal.

BETTER CHILDREN FOR MIDDLESBORO

The free examination of children of pre-school age to be conducted here during the Red Cross health exhibit this month is a commendable move and one which will be of inestimable value to the rising generation. Few children are even comparatively perfect and all parents of children from the ages of two and one-half to six years should take advantage of the opportunity for the examination that will mean so much for the children in later life.

Physical defects or inherent diseases are easier to cure when a person is young; the immature body reacts far more readily to the physician's skill or to the effects of regular healthful habits. A year or two or even a few months of proper physical care after the examination should be sufficient to put the child in a fit condition to enter school.

Education is making great strides in this state and it is pleasing to note that the term now has a greater significance than that of mere book learning. If the schools do not inculcate in the youthful mind knowledge that will enable the pupil to become a strong, healthy adult the entire educational system is a failure regardless of the number of degrees it can affix to a graduate's name. Given normally healthy children to begin with, a condition that will result from the examination and subsequent pre school treatment, it is believed that schools will to a far greater degree emphasize the importance of physical fitness.

We are just now emerging from a state of ignorance and superstition regarding the proper care for young children. Science can do much to aid Nature in the formation of the physician body.

We should all be grateful that we have that great universal organization the Red Cross, to inaugurate and conduct such a noble work.

LIFE'S GREATEST BATTLE

It has been said that life is a miniature war, that man's days on earth are beset with war and strife against every thing from the forces of nature to his own complexities of though and action. These last constitute his greatest battles.

Man has become master over many things but one of the hardest fights comes when he endeavors to control himself. The caliber of the man may, in a sense, be measured by the character and the conduct of these conflicts with himself. A mere human being who goes through life without thought to anything but the most obvious of physical things, knows nothing of life's greatest battle. He simply eats and sleeps and "puts on clothes."

But the man who has a goal, who sees an end to be reached, will give thought to himself, to his station in life and the result obtained from the conscious effort he has expended. To do this one must give constant attention and effort to the perfecting of his own habits of work, thought and play.

Man has won life's greatest battle when he has become master of himself.

Questions

ONE—In event of a game that is forfeited, after it has gone beyond five innings, what is done with the records?

TWO—What is the distance from the pitcher's box to the home plate?

THREE—When is the catcher charged with a passed ball?

FOUR—If while running down a player between the lines, in which four players take part, the runner is finally called out for interference or running out of the line, do such players get credit with an assist?

FIVE—In the major leagues, if a player is put out of the first game of a double header, may he play in the second contest?

Answers

ONE—In a game which has gone over five innings and is then forfeited the records go into the averages as made.

TWO—The distance is 60 feet 6 inches.

THREE—The catcher is charged with a passed ball when his failure to hold a legally delivered ball enables the batsman to reach first, or permits a base runner to advance.

FOUR—All the players who take part in the play are credited with an assist.

FIVE—The major leagues have a ruling that if a player is put out of the first game of a double header he is ineligible for the second contest.

AN INTIMATE STORY OF INNERMOST EMOTIONS REVEALED IN PRIVATE LETTERS
Copyright 1923 -NEA Service Inc

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRESCOTT TO HER MOTHER, MRS. JOSEPH HAMILTON. CONTINUED

I am finishing this letter by dictating it to the stenographer at the hotel. Although Jack was very kind to invite me to come to his office I could see that I was rather a nuisance down there, as he had no time for me and everybody else seemed rather afraid of me.

I may as well confess it, mother dear, because I have not been able to get to work to fix up our home I have been just a little lonely. You see, when I was here before visiting Vera Stokley, who at last has gone abroad to join her family, every man in town was paying me more or less attention but now—well I guess I am getting a taste of being an old married woman.

I had my first letter from Vera the other day saying that Betty—just think of it "little Betty!"—was writing a novel. Fancy that!

Very says the story has the weirdest plot—something about a pearl necklace—but she did not describe it in detail. Very probably Betty has written it to Alice. You know the children were always very visionary and romantic.

But to get back to my grievance, not one of Jack's men friends have called upon me. Not even Sydney Carton, and I know from something Jack said that he has been in the city for a day or two.

I will say this for Jack's friends—almost all of them have sent flowers except Sydney Carton.

I haven't heard from Bee Grimshaw lately nor Sally Atherton. Am awfully anxious to know how Sally's marriage is progressing. You know none of us though it would be a success before but since I have been cooped up here, dear mother, I have come to the conclusion that a woman must have something to occupy her time. Otherwise she becomes bored with life even when married to the man of her choice.

I wonder if you have already sent us the wedding presents. Jack has not even had time to go shopping with me. He insists that buying household goods should be my part of the bargain, but I am beginning to wonder if everything I do will please Jack.

Even you sometimes displeased dad, didn't you, mother?

Anyway I love you.

Your daughter,
LESLIE.

P. S.—Just what are the ethics and etiquet in regard to letters that come addressed to one's husband?

❖ ❖ Berton Braley's Daily Poem ❖ ❖
❖ ON WITH THE DANCE! ❖
❖ ❖ ❖ ❖ By Berton Braley ❖ ❖ ❖ ❖

Some solemn folk chorus, "There's stern work before us.
The world's in a terrible state;
We've no time for laughter, we've got to get after
The business of setting things straight
Cut out the romancing, the singing and dancing
Which people pursue with such vim;
They're most deleterious; we must be serious—
Serious, dogged and grim!"
So, column by column, we're warned to be solemn;
But, though it's a worrisome world
Which isn't behaving and badly needs saving
From dangers in which it is swirled,
Still we and our neighbors can lighten our labors
With song and with jazz now and then;
Conditions are fearful but we can be cheerful
While building things over again
Far better be singing and dancing, than wringing
Our heads in a futile despair.
Our job may appall us but that needn't thrall us
In clouds of perpetual care:
Our tasks on us levy a toll that is heavy
But still to our work we advance:
With vim we go to it and smile while we do it
And pause—now and then—for a dance.

SONNET

To one who has been long in city pent,
'Tis very sweet to look into the fair
And open face of heaven,—to breathe a prayer
Full in the smile of the blue firmament.
Who is more happy, when, with hearts content,
Fatigued he sinks into some pleasant lair
Of wavy grass, and reads a debonair
And gentle tale of love and languishment?
Returning home at evening, with an ear
Catching the notes of Philomel,—an eye
Watching the sailing of cloudlet's bright career,
He mourns that day so soon has glided by:
E'en like the passage of an angel's tear
That falls through the clear ether silently.

—John Keats.

EWING BEATS ROSE HILL BASKETBALL, LOSES AT BASEBALL

EWING, Va., May 2.—Two very interesting ball games were played here Monday afternoon between the basketball and baseball teams of Rose Hill High School and the Lee County Industrial School. The L. C. I. girls won the basketball game by a score of 15 to 13, while the Rose Hill boys won the baseball game by a score of 10 to 6.

These games were the center of a great amount of interest, because of the spirit of rivalry between these two schools in this district, and also because they were to decisive as to what team should play at Jonesville next Saturday, which is Field Day.

The basketball score means that Ewing and Dryden will play for the championship pennant there. But Rose Hill's victory has caused a tie among several school teams and some of this series will have to be played again.

A large number of persons from each community attended the games.

You Can Easily Remove and Prevent Blackheads, Says Rubinstein.

In England the home of many beautiful women, Gladys Cooper is acknowledged to be the loveliest. She is the perfect blonde type at its highest point of perfection. She says her beauty secrets are hard work, exercise and country life.

In every country where I am called upon to help women solve the riddle of good looks, I come across different skin conditions, but there is one trouble that persists seemingly in spite of all varieties of climate and conditions. I refer to blackheads.

Nine out of every ten women are vexed by these horrid little "black heads" as the French call them not only make the skin dull and muddy looking but often lead to the dreaded pimples and spots called acne.

A blackhead is a tiny dust particle that imbeds itself in the skin, held there by the natural secretion of the skin The pores unable to rid themselves of these irritants send out a call for help to the little juice-secreting glands which respond by rushing their moisture to the affected parts. If the pores are still unable to dislodge the impure dust particles the secretions overflow onto the skin's surface and all the while the pores are stretching and losing their power to close.

That is why we seldom see blackheads without "shine" and enlarged pores.

The chief thing to be considered is how to purify the skin, reduce the pores to normal and regulate the secretions.

The opening and closing of the pores properly is the keynote of correction. To eradicate blackheads you must penetrate inside the pore where the black speck has made itself at home and as the blackhead becomes smaller and weaker through treatment close the pores so that no fresh invasion of dust particles and microbes can upset the skin

Strong soaps are injurious because they dry the surface, thus causing wrinkles and lines without reaching the inner cells. I advise a special wash of gritty texture for the thick sluggish skin and a softer paste of equally cleansing strength for the thinner and more delicate skin.

In the daytime use an astringent after washing and use this at intervals during the day in preference to both water and cleansing cream. At night after washing and before putting on an astringent put a small quantity of stimulating nourishing cream on cotton that has been soaked in hot water and wrung dry. Then rub the skin with this until your face flushes. This will help you immeasurably as nothing over comes blackheads as increased functioning of a skin that has become sluggish owing to their presence.

ACTUAL SHORTAGE WORKERS IN PARTS OF COUNTRY SHOWN

Kentucky Has Leak of Labor in Building Trades Particularly—Office Work Only Place Showing Slight Excess

WAGES GENERALLY HIGHER AND RISING MOST PLACES

By Associated Press.

An actual shortage of workers in some class of labor, including farm help, exists in 23 states of the Union, while in 21 other states the unemployment, so prevalent in 1920-21, has been completely absorbed and in only four states does general unemployment exist, according to figures, statistics and reports gathered from labor leaders, industrial commissions and state and federal employment agencies from all of the 48 states of this country.

Increases in wages are noted in so many states and in so many different trades and occupations that they point to a general trend in that direction.

The report also show a general increase in wages in Michigan and an increase to the building trades, metal and machinery workers in New England. Increase in wages of ranch hands in the northwest; carpenters in Kentucky, farm labor in Iowa and Minnesota; bricklayers and plasterers in Montana and plasterers in Buffalo are also shown. Eight thousand Bethlehem Steel Company men have received an 11 per cent raise. Common labor is at a premium in Ohio, textile mill workers and the plasterers have received increases in Virginia, and the wages of miners have been increased in Arizona.

Builders Wages High

In addition to these, the reports show skilled laborers getting $1.25 an hour and plasterers $1.50 an hour in St. Louis, the highest wage ever paid there for this class of work, while negotiations are now on in New York between contractors and the building trades for an increase in wages of bricklayers, carpenters, plasterers, plumbers and allied trades by $1.00 to $2.00 a day.

Reports from only one state shows that wages have been lowered. This is in Louisiana, where the pay of common labor has been sharply cut.

The survey show that in 14 states in the central, middlewestern, western and southern sections a shortage in farm help confronts the tiller of the soil this spring; that in the five states of New York, Indiana, Kentucky, Illinois and California, a shortage is shown in worker sto carry on the hugge building programs that are planned. In nine states skilled laborers are in demand with jobs going begging, while in four other states the shortage comes in common labor.

The building boom is noted in 17 states and takes in territory in every section of the country, while a general boom in all business is reported from seven states of New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri and Deleware.

Industrial Peace Shown

The report show that only in Oklahoma, Tennessee, Georgia and South Carolina does an excess of workers over jobs exist generally. True, these is a surplus of workers in clerical help, porters and chauffeurs in New York, Kentucky, North Carolina, Oregon, Washington and California, but in each of these states the workers in other lines are employed and in certain lines a surplus of jobs exists.

That a period of industrial peace has settled over the entire country is indicated by the reports of only 9 strikes of any consequence througout the length and breadth of the land. Some of these are trivial at present and none of them appears to cause more than a ripple of local interest. Figured in these is the big shop strike of last July that in some quarters is still in existence, and in other quarters is reported to be over and done with. There are two small strikes among the stevedores at New York, the Somerset county coal strike near Pittsburg that has been hanging fire for some months a strike of three hundred workers in the silk mills at New London, Conn., strikes of painters, electricians and plumbers at Omaha and moulders' strike in Deleware.

Condition This Section

Following are the condensed reports for Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia:

Kentucky—State labor commissioner and numerous building contractors: Shortage in skilled and unskilled labor in building trades. More acute shortage predicted soon. Office work alone shows excess of employes and then but slightly. Carpenters recently received ten cents an hour increase and some some contractors are offering bonuses in other skilled work. Twelve million dollar building construction work started since January 1, compared with normal building work of $7,000,000.

Tennessee—From M. S. Nicholson, state department of labor; Fofteen thousand unemployed, the majority of whom are common laborers, but extensive building operations and construction projects in the larger cities of the state soon will provide situations for th majority of these unemployed. The remainder will be absorbed on the farms when increaded activity comes in the rural districts with the development of the crops. The unemployed are distributed 3,000 to 5,000 in Nashville, 4,000 in Memphis, 2,500 in Chattanooga, 1,500 in Knoxville, and the remainder scattered.

Virginia—From Federal crop Statistician: Farm labor supply is only 86 per cent of the demand and planting will be curtailed. There is no work for all who want in in skilled trades. Situation is attributed to labors going north into mills and on road and building construction. Building operation are setting new high records. Textile mills have increased wages. Plasterers and other building trade workers also have received increased pay.

"BACK TO THE HORSE" MOVEMENT

The Farmer Is Finding the Horse Less Expensive than the Tractor—A Striking Array of Figures Collected By the Horse Association of America

IN these trying days the prices for farm products and cattle, sheep and hogs are so low that the farmer would be justified in following the example of some of the coal miners and calling a strike, but the humanity and patriotism of these tillers of the soil, so strikingly exemplified during the war, keeps their tired feet in the furrow and impels them to bear a little longer more than their share of the burdens of the world

In this hard school of experience the farmers of Kentucky are learning the value of co-operation, the need of economy, and the importance of a cost accounting system that will make every expended dollar bring its full return Whenever the expense of producing a particular crop is greater than the amount it will bring in the market the farmer is faced with the problem of cutting out this crop altogether, or reducing the cost of production.

The one item alone of a tractor may furnish him a starting place for his retrenchment. Does he need so expensive a piece of machinery, attractive and alluring though it may be? Has he ever figured the cost of keeping old Dobbin, whom he has probably discarded, compared to running a tractor in the production of his crops? This investigation will surprise him.

The Horse Association of America, whose unselfish purpose is to improve the breed of every class of horses in this country, has secured from authentic sources a striking array of figures conclusively showing that the farmer, and the town, or city merchant, with many short delivery hauls to make, can save money by discarding the motor driven vehicle and returning the faithful horse to his old place of honor and service between the shafts.

Kentucky, the home of the thoroughbred, is particularly interested in this "back to the horse" movement because this practical plan includes crossing the cold blood of the ordinary mare with the hot blood of the thoroughbred, thus producing a work horse with spirit, courage and endurance, and trebling his value

The following official comparative cost figures are unanswerable:

John A Pilgard & Co., Hartford, Conn, writes: "During the winter of 1920, when all motor cars in this city were stalled, we were able to make 100 per cent. deliveries by the temporary use of horses We plan now to replace our auto cars with horses as soon as suitable stable accommodations can be secured."

Providence Public Market, Providence, R. I., writes: "We have given this delivery proposition very careful study and consideration, and have tried out the various motor car deliveries and find that the horse has no competition with either the gas or electric truck. We are using 90 horses at our large stores, for the retail delivery of groceries and provisions."

Western Maryland Dairy, Baltimore, Md., writes. "In the retail delivery of milk, auto and electric trucks have been tried out and found impractical."

Sheffield Farms Company, Inc., New York, writes: "We find auto trucks necessary in certain lines of work, but the great bulk of retail deliveries can be handled more cheaply by horse. Horse sense is a big item as a time saver. A horse soon learns to be his own chauffeur in stopping and starting."

The Empire State Dairy Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes: "We operate 225 horse delivery wagons, 20 gas trucks, 3 electric trucks. As we must go 365 days of the year, regardless of weather, our experience has been that the horse vehicle is the only dependable means of carrying out that service."

Wallach Laundry System, New York, writes: "I know the question of high feed, care and stabling comes into consideration, but in spite of that, the horse is an excellent efficiency machine in operation By concentration into communities, putting each district within reach of the horse drawn units, we have been able to realize two to one on our older methods."

American Palace Steam Laundry, Buffalo, N. Y., writes: "We have in operation every day 30 single wagons and we know that our delivery costs are much lower with a horse than with an auto."

Holland Laundry, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes: "In using horses for the great bulk of our laundry delivery work, I consider we are saving one-half in first cost of equipment, getting many more years of service, also saving in costly repairs and expensive operation"

Kolb Bakery Company, Hartford, Conn., writes: "We tried out motor cars in retail bread delivery and found the expense prohibitive. The motor car simply multiplied our delivery costs, without increasing our business, and each car only replaced one horse. In value, we estimate our entire horse equipment at about $10,000 A motor car equipment for the same work would cost $75,000—a three to one increase in investment, depreciation and operating costs Any firm that will keep books on delivery costs, will find, as we have, that for economy and reliability in local deliveries, the horse is an outstanding winner."

E. H. Koester Bakery, Baltimore, Md., writes: "We use the horse entirely for all deliveries within the city proper, motor trucks for suburban and out of town deliveries only. The horse is beyond all question the only practical means of delivery on short hauls and many stops. The horse being equally as efficient and at one-third the operating cost."

Stewart & Company, Baltimore, Md., writes: "During the war period, much pressure was brought to bear with our firm to substitute the auto truck entirely for local city delivery of department store goods, for which we are using 35 horses Our experience with auto trucks on long distance deliveries convinced us that by changing to the short-lived, expensive motor trucks, we would multiply our delivery costs, which would have to be passed on to the consumer, and with less reliable service.

"Our experience demonstrates clearly that there is no substitute for the horse in local city delivery work, and in our policy to continue the horse equipment, we have no regrets, no expensive changes to make."

H P. Hood & Sons, Boston, Mass., writes: "Delivery equipment is of vital importance to the milk business, and we have given the subject very careful consideration. With a view to improving our delivery system, we have tried out both auto trucks and electric cars, and our experience shows us that the horse equipment is by far the most satisfactory."

That these facts gathered by the Horse Association of America apply with equal force to every city in the Union which has worked out the problem of City Transportation that in all short hauls, with frequent stops, the horse is more economical than motor driven vehicles, and is surely displacing them. In view of these facts, it will be very bad economy for the Kentucky farmer to allow his breeding stock to become depleted.

Handling Big Mails

The railroads of America are continuously performing a great service to the Nation in the transportation of mail matter. And the efficient operation of the Postal Department would be impossible were it not for the interest and co-operation of the railroads.

As a further evidence of the splended economic conditions which exist in the country to-day, it is interesting to know that at no time since the establishing of the Post Office Department have the mails been so heavy or the railroads called on to handle so much tonnage for the Postal Department.

Statistics, furnished by the Postmaster General at Washington, show that the postal receipts for the last fiscal year were $484,853,540.—an increase of approximately $21,000,000 over 1921; $50,000,000 over 1920-19; $100,000,000 over 1918 and $150,000,000 over 1917.

The compensation to railroads has not increased in anything like such proportion. This business is handled on a small margin of profit, and under most stringent regulations, enforced by penalties, as to responsibility in giving mail preference over every other class of traffic. The large volume of Parcel Post mail now being carried is one of the most frequent and serious causes of delay to passenger trains.

The next time you take a railroad journey, notice the loading of mail at the various stations and see for yourself the enormous number of mail bags, Parcel Post packages, et cetera, that the railroads are being called upon to handle.
